SOUTHERN ADVENTIST UNIVERSITY PROFESSIONAL PORTFOLIOS

Office of Academic Administration

Revision of February 2005 Updated 02 February 2006 Updated 11 June 2008 Updated 18 February 2009 Updated 19 February 2013 Updated 10 February 2014 Updated 21 December 2021

Purpose:

Southern Adventist University is primarily a teaching institution. While research, scholarly activities, and community service are also highly valued, the greatest attention is given to effective teaching that enhances student learning.

The use of professional portfolios is intended to facilitate both ongoing faculty development and periodic evaluation. As a professional development tool, construction of one's portfolio is designed to encourage self-reflection, peer coaching and evaluation, careful analysis of student feedback, and open conversations between the faculty member and his or her department chair or school dean. As a result of these inputs, the faculty member may become more aware of his or her successes and effectiveness in helping students learn. Additionally, the professor may discover areas in his or her professional performance that may benefit from additional attention.

The professional portfolio also reflects multiple perspectives, collected over time, that enable academic administration and the Faculty Promotions Committee to make more careful decisions regarding promotion in rank and in employment levels. For this reason, professors will be asked to submit an updated professional portfolio whenever they are eligible for advancement in employment level or promotion to the next category of academic rank. If the professor is at the highest level of academic rank and employment level, he or she will be asked to submit a portfolio for a review on a 5-year cycle.

Instructions:

The contents of the portfolio should provide a picture of the professor's development and effectiveness over time, but the most recent five years should receive special focus. Professors may find it helpful to update their portfolios at the end or the beginning of each academic year as a part of their Professional Development by Objectives (PDO) process.

Portfolios may be presented in various forms, but a dossier that is clipped with a binder clip would be appropriate. Including page numbers and providing a table of contents is helpful for easy reference to the various components of the portfolio. It is preferred that three-ring binders, plastic page covers, and "cute" embellishments or decorations be avoided for this professional portfolio. Since four members of the Faculty Promotions Committee will review your portfolio, you will need to submit four hard copies of your portfolio to the Office of Academic Administration, an electronic copy to eparker@southern.edu, and a hard copy to your dean/chair.

The following components should be included in the following order: Please use this as a checklist prior to submitting your portfolio.

- 1. A current curriculum vitae containing the following components, in the order listed.
 - a. Professional directory information (not personal or family information).
 - b. Degrees earned, listed from most to least recent. For a doctoral degree also list dissertation title and dissertation advisor.
 - c. Awards and recognitions.
 - d. Teaching and/or administrative experience, indicating calendar years for each, listed from most to least recent.
 - e. Campus committee memberships, current and past, indicating years of service for each committee.
 - f. Research, scholarly activities, professional performances related to discipline, publications, and professional activities. List in categories, from most to least recent.
 - g. Service activities
 - i. List memberships on community boards and committees.
 - ii. Church boards, committees, and offices
 - iii. Other service related to your discipline, such as consultations and volunteer activities that help the community through your professional expertise.
- 2. An essay describing your teaching philosophy. Minimally, the philosophy statement must address the following in separate sections:
 - a. Beliefs and assumptions about the purpose of teaching and learning at a Seventh-day Adventist Christian university.
 - b. Beliefs and assumptions about students and students' needs.
 - c. Beliefs and assumptions about how you can best facilitate student learning including how to best teach to various student learning styles.
- 3. A self-assessment considering your:
 - a. Teaching effectiveness. Provide an analysis of teaching effectiveness. Include in this analysis the following areas of evidence.
 - Student performance
 - Standardized exams
 - o Projects, internships, accomplishments
 - o Employment in field, admission to graduate school
 - o Other
 - Student perceptions Comments on course evaluations
 - O It is expected that an analysis of teaching effectiveness will carefully consider comments and observations made through student evaluations of teaching. Both affirmations and areas of concern should be addressed, and responses to concerns should be included. Do not be defensive or worry about individual comments. Pay attention to patterns and trends across courses, within courses, and longitudinally for individual courses.
 - Peer evaluations
 - Trends in scores
 - Specific comments and observations
 - Dean's or chair's evaluations and/or comments
 - Evaluation of how well you apply your own philosophy of education

- Evaluation of how you responded to recommendations made in the most recent portfolio evaluation letter from the promotions committee
- NOTE: It is highly recommended that the professor have at least one class session video taped and include his or her analysis of the videotape in this section. It is not necessary to include the tape itself.
- b. Contributions to the students, the department/school, the university, and the community.
- c. Scholarship and professional contributions.
- 4. A description of professional development goals. It is expected that these will result, in part at least, from the prior analyses.
 - a. Immediate
 - b. Five-year
 - c. Long-term
- 5. The department chair's or school dean's evaluation checklist (FPC-1 form attached) and a letter of evaluation and recommendation from the chair or dean.
- 6. Student course evaluation results:
 - a. A table (FPC-2a form attached) summarizing students' course evaluations since the past portfolio was presented. This form is automatically generated by logging in to "My Access," then choosing "Academics" from the list, and then "Course Evaluation." You will need to change the semester to the most recently completed semester to see the "Five-Year Report" tab.
 - b. Photocopies of course evaluation results, along with students' typed comments, for two previous semesters. Individual course reports are available at the same location as under section "a" above. Click on each course in the two most recent fall/winter semesters and then click on "download PDF report for this course."
 - c. Print these in landscape so that all three columns of scores will be printed.
- 7. Three peer evaluations (FPC-3 form attached) by colleagues (full-time teaching faculty) selected by the person preparing the professional portfolio.
 - a. One evaluation (in addition to the one provided by the chair or dean) from a colleague within one's department or school.
 - b. Two or more evaluations from full-time faculty members in other departments or schools.
- 8. Most recent prior letter from the promotions committee if any.
