Thank you, and welcome to the Poetry Hall of Fame, where some of our favorite performers have gathered to bring you a treasury of wonderful poetry.

John Adams once wrote, "You will never be alone with a poet in your pocket." Well, I think our pockets are quite deep.

And we have many poets, whose works we want to share with you.

And to get started, here is a well-loved adventure poem by John Masfield, who began life as a common sailor, and ended as Poet Laureate of England.

I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea in
